

Corporate Harassment Policies

Companies can be found liable in harassment cases. when an employee makes a complaint about harassment. as the supervisors a management representative. In other words, a supervisor can be regarded by the law as the company itself.

if it fail eddo take time land appropriate action to correct the situation. Security guards should be familiar not only with the harassment provisions in Canada's Human Rights legislation, but also the individual policies of client and company. Security may be called upon to participate investigate allegations of harassment.