

Module 7

Criminal Law

The Court can be satisfied of this in one of two ways: by the accused person admitting guilt (a guilty plea), or by finding the person guilty after trial. The federal government has the responsibility of creating criminal laws and has placed the bulk of them in a comprehensive piece of legislation called the Criminal Code (Canada).