

Module 9

Communication Skills

Communication also uses non-verbal cues, such as body language. A security guard's posture, gestures, facial expression and eye contact can all convey information.

Security guards should check with their employers about communication protocols for specific situations, such as fire alarms, and the use of special communications equipment like two-way radios.

