Section 12: Essential Security Protocols.

Security guards are required to promptly adapt to changes in their surroundings, which encompass various tasks such as managing traffic movement, ensuring the safety of individuals within and transitioning between locations, overseeing the access and departure of people and vehicles, as well as observing and monitoring people's activities. Security guards must possess a thorough understanding of the appropriate methods to handle these situations effectively.